

“CAMPUS CARRY” LAW SPURS ANTI-AMERICAN ACADEMIC TO FLEE TEXAS FOR PA.

A freedom-hating academic is relocating from Texas to Pennsylvania – whining all the way – because he disagrees with the Lone Star State’s stand on gun safety. University of Texas School of Architecture Dean Frederick Steiner is taking a job at as dean of the University of Pennsylvania School of Design because of a recently enacted Texas gun law called Campus Carry, according to an article on cnn.com.

The new law will allow people who are licensed to carry concealed handguns to carry their guns onto the campuses of Texas’ four-year state universities. The universities will be able to create gun-free zones, but those zones cannot include classrooms.

Last year, Texas Gov. Greg Abbott stopped at a gun range to sign into law bills letting Texans carry concealed handguns on college campuses and openly carry them virtually everywhere else, according to a report on kxan.com. “Abbott was at Red’s Indoor Range in Pflugerville,” the article noted. “He says the laws mean Texans can be sure their Second Amendment rights will be stronger and more secure than ever before.”

The departure of Dean Steiner is Texas’ gain but Pennsylvania’s loss, since it means the Ivy League Philadelphia university has yet another anti-gunner infecting the minds of young adults.

Classrooms, architecture studios, and grading can be highly stressful settings, whines Steiner, who complains that “When you have a stressful situation like exams, performance review or studio, I don’t see how a firearm can enhance that learning experience. There’s no shortage of examples of stressful work settings that result in people being shot. ... It’s not abstract. We see it all the time. So why add firearms to a situation where we know there is stress involved.”

Of course Steiner didn’t bother to note that when Islamic terrorists slaughtered scores of people in places like California and Paris the barbarians weren’t in the middle of a “stressful” classroom setting. Steiner also didn’t address the fact that terrorists have never successfully attacked an NRA meeting or other gathering where the majority of citizens are legally armed.

Steiner has received some “hate mail,” he admitted.

"They use negative labels like liberal and go to Massachusetts," Steiner said, according to the cnn.com article.

SCORE ONE FOR THE GOOD GUYS

A prosecutor in New Jersey has dropped a gun charge against a Pennsylvania corrections officer who was accused after a car accident of carrying his weapon without a state permit.

A spokesman for Gloucester County, N.J. prosecutors said that the charge was inappropriate because Raymond Hughes was the victim of a drunken driving accident when police in Glassboro learned he had the gun in his car, according to a FOXnews.com report.

It seems that Hughes had a valid permit to carry in Pennsylvania, but the permit wasn't recognized by New Jersey's ridiculous gun “laws.” Hughes, a productive citizen, faced a minimum of 3 ½ years in prison if he was found guilty of the felony.

The case also could have cost him his job. He's been a sergeant at a state prison in Chester for more than 13 years, according to FOXnews.com.

Hughes' case once again called attention to New Jersey's famously strict gun laws, considered the second-toughest in the country after New York's. A number of gun owners from outside the state, like Hughes, say they were unaware that New Jersey is one of the few states in the country that do not recognize other states' permits and were shocked to learn they faced criminal charges and significant prison time, according to an nj.com report.

Those cases have sparked outrage among the National Rifle Association and other patriotic 2nd Amendment groups who say otherwise law-abiding people are being subjected to unduly harsh penalties, notes the article.

Among those who have been charged in cases similar to Hughes' are a North Carolina resident who voluntarily told police in Mercer County that he was carrying a weapon and an armored car security guard in North Brunswick who faced charges for transporting his firearm in the glove box of his car.”

Similarly, as previously reported in the Second Amendment Committee bulletin, New Jersey Governor Chris Christie last year pardoned Shaneen Allen, a Philadelphia resident, mother of two and concealed carry permit owner who was arrested in New Jersey for carrying a weapon in her car.

Allen had a concealed carry permit and a lawfully registered handgun while she was traveling through New Jersey, when she was pulled over by a New Jersey police officer for making an unsafe lane change.

She told the officer of the handgun in her car, unaware that it was illegal in the state of New Jersey. Because of the misunderstanding, she was arrested and faced felony prosecution.

New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie – who recently dropped out of the Presidential race but announced his support for patriot Donald Trump – has pardoned a number of individuals accused of unlawfully possessing a weapon even when that weapon is legally owned and has been registered somewhere in the country.

In late February, however, New Jersey’s Republican Assembly leader said he is pursuing legislation to loosen the state’s tough gun possession laws, according to a washingtontimes.com article.

Minority Leader Jon Bramnick and Republican Assemblyman Declan O’Scanlon said at a statehouse news conference the legislation would make it easier for prosecutors to reduce gun possession charges.

“Bramnick says current law bars prosecutors from exercising discretion when negotiating plea deals, especially in cases where a defendant is from out of state,” notes the report. “He said the new effort stemmed from the case of an actor who in 2015 used an air gun while making an independent film in Woodbridge and was charged with a gun-related offense.”

But Dingbat Democratic Assembly Speaker Vincent Prieto has no plans to advance the legislation, whining that it would “weaken” the state’s confiscatory gun laws.

TAKE THAT BARRACK HUSSEIN OBAMA

“President” Barrack Hussein Obama has repeatedly tried to eliminate the First and Second Amendments, even as he embraces Islamic terrorism. But a patriot in Georgia is fighting back against Hussein Obama and his fellow travelers like “Mao-Tse” Pelosi and Michael “Moneybags” Bloomberg, by requiring all of his employees to get a concealed carry license and to be armed, according to an article on bredred.com.

“After each employee at Lance Toland Associates gets their license, Toland presents them with a gun known as the judge,” according to the report. “He says it is one of the most effective self-defense weapons and all his aviation insurance agencies carry them openly in the office.”

“Everybody has one of these in their drawer or on their person. I would not want to come into one of my facilities,” Toland said in the article. “It’s a five-shot .410, just like a shotgun and you call it hand cannon.”

Toland said after hearing about recent home invasions and violent crime in the metro Atlanta area, he came up with the new office mandate.

“They all had their conceal carry permit within 3 to 4 weeks of me announcing that this was something you had to do,” he said. “With the presentation of their license, they all got a 4/10 judge pistol.”

QUOTABLE QUOTES

One cannot legislate the maniacs off the street ... these maniacs can only be shut down by an armed citizenry. Indeed bad things can happen in nations where the citizenry is armed, but not as bad as those which seem to be threatening our disarmed citizenry in this country at this time. -- Jeff Cooper

When a strong man, fully armed, guards his own palace, his goods are safe -- Luke 11:21

You won't get gun control by disarming law-abiding citizens. There's only one way to get real gun-control; disarm the thugs and the criminals. Lock them up and if you don't actually throw away the key, at least lose it for a long time . . . it's a nasty truth, but those who seek to inflict harm are not fazed by gun controllers. I happen to know this from personal experience. -- Ronald Reagan

Laws that forbid the carrying of arms . . . disarm only those who are neither inclined nor determined to commit crimes . . . such laws make things worse for the assaulted and better for the assailants; they serve rather to encourage than to prevent homicides, for an unarmed man may be attacked with greater confidence than an armed man. – Thomas Jefferson

If violent crime is to be curbed, it is only the intended victim who can do it. The felon does not fear the police, and he fears neither judge nor jury. Therefore what he must be taught to fear is his victim. -- Jeff Cooper

When guns are outlawed, only the Government will have guns. The Government - and a few outlaws. If that happens, you can count me among the outlaws. — Edward Abbey
