POLITICIANS BLAME LAW-ABIDING CITIZENS FOR ISLAMIC TERRORIST

It sounds like a sick joke. But unfortunately it's true.

An Islamic terrorist – who pledged himself to the barbarian ISIS group – slaughters dozens of people at a Florida nightclub. What is the response of "president" Barrack Hussein Obama? "We don't know what the shooter's motivations were."

Fortunately, Presidential candidate Donald Trump called Obama out, and bravely identified the problem: "Look, we're led by a man that either is not tough, not smart, or he's got something else in mind," Trump said in a lengthy interview on Fox News, following the terror attack. "And the something else in mind —you know, people can't believe it. People cannot, they cannot believe that President Obama is acting the way he acts and can't even mention the words 'radical Islamic terrorism.' There's something going on. It's inconceivable. There's something going on."

Unfortunately, most of the establishment Republicans refused to rally behind Trump's patriotic statements. In fact, many of them turned tail and joined with anti-American Democrats to ignore the real problem – home-grown Islamic terror – and instead tried to pin the blame on an easy scapegoat: the Constitution's Second Amendment.

"Both of Pennsylvania's Senators took park in a marathon filibuster that called for gun limits," according to a report on phillymag.com. For 15 hours, Sen. Christopher S. Murphy of Connecticut held the Senate floor to call for stricter "gun control" following the country's worst ever mass shooting – committed, of course, by an Islamic terrorist – this past weekend in Orlando.

In a craven show of cowardice, Pa. Senator Pat Toomey, a Republican, joined Democrats Bob Casey and Chris Murphy, ignoring the threat posed by Islamic terror in an effort to somehow blame the NRA and law-abiding Americans. The left-wing elitist media, of course, ate it up.

Senate Democrats finally ended their gabfest after turncoat Republican Party leaders reportedly agreed to allow votes on two proposed "gun control" measures.

Murphy, from Connecticut, said that a compromise had been reached. Votes would be held on whether to ban people on the government's terrorist watch list from obtaining gun licenses – even though it has been demonstrated that people are often mistakenly placed on the list, with no ability to challenge the action – and whether to expand background checks to gun shows and internet sales, the first step towards a total confiscation of our firearms.

Patriots are urged to call 202-224-3121 and tell your senator/ representative that, despite Obama's desire, we will not bow down to terrorism or to Sharia law.

PATRIOT EXPOSES CROOKED POLICIES OF LEFT-WING POLLING GROUP

A left-wing liberal organization, "Public Policy Polling," is a favorite of the elitist mass media. Somehow, PPP's polling always seems to show support for Democrat positions; and, of course, left-wing liberal media outlets pick up the garbage and run with it, smearing their front pages with the lies of the PPP.

Fortunately, veteran campaign reporter Nate Silver called out PPP's evil tactics, which include hiding results that don't line up with the group's left-wing policies. It turns out that the liberal group polled likely voters just before an election in Colorado, and discovered that a gang of gun confiscation Democrats would probably be voted out of office in a recall. So what did the liberal group do with the results? The same thing Leftists always do when they don't like reality: cover it up.

"Things got tense between the Democratic-leaning Public Policy Polling and the former New York Times' campaign forecaster, Nate Silver, after PPP admitted that it didn't release the results of a survey predicting defeat for pro-gun control lawmakers facing recall in Colorado," writes washingtonexaminer.com. "'VERY bad and unscientific practice for @ppppolls to suppress a polling result they didn't believe/didn't like," Silver, who now works at ESPN, tweeted."

The Leftists at PPP admitted that they tried to deceive citizens by hiding the results of the poll.

"We did a poll last weekend in Colorado Senate District 3 and found that voters intended to recall Angela Giron by a 12 point margin, 54/42," PPP's Tom Jensen posted on the company site. "In a district that Barack Obama won by almost 20 points I figured there was no way that could be right and made a rare decision not to release the poll. It turns out we should have had more faith in our numbers because she was indeed recalled by 12 points."

So let's be sure we understand what this Obama-loving lib is saying:

1—Jensen polls voters who helped to elect Barrack Obama, an Islamic terror supporter.

2—Those voters apparently finally woke up to the fact that Obama is a clear and present danger to the country, and now plan to vote against other Democrats who follow Obama's anti-American stance. In a courageous show of admitting that they were wrong to vote for a non-citizen who wants to take away our guns, the voters say they want to yank these gun confiscators out of office.

3—But liberal Jensen, an Obama bootlicker, can't believe that Americans actually support gun rights (even though poll after poll shows they do), so on his own, this Stalin-loving lib decides that "there was no way that could be right," even though the voters did indeed vote the gun confiscators out of office.

Hmmm... Islamic terrorists slaughter civilized Christians, Jews and others, and Barrack Hussein Obama blames it on the NRA. Intelligent citizens vote to recall Clinton-loving gun grabbers, and a pollster says "there was no way that could be right." Are we seeing a pattern here?

LEFT WING "NEWS" OUTLET SINKS TO NEW LOW

It turns out there's a local angle to the left-wingers from "Public Policy Polling."

According to a report on pennlive.com, a poll says that some 46 percent of Pennsylvania voters believe that the "Phillie Phanatic" is more qualified to be president than the 40 percent who picked Donald Trump.

The Phillie Phanatic, a cartoon-like figure, is the official mascot of the Philadelphia Phillies Major League Baseball team. He is a large, furry, green creature with an extendable tongue that performs various routines to entertain fans during baseball games at Citizens Bank Park.

So according to this poll, a bird mascot (a human, of course, with an outrageous uniform), would beat Donald Trump in an election. Just one question: did the pollsters ask voters if they preferred the "Phillie Phanatic" to Hillary Clinton?

Of course not. Or if they did, they aren't releasing the findings. "Public Policy Polling," of course is the left-wing group that buries polls that don't agree with its leftist, Islamicist viewpoint.

Ho hum, another biased poll, and another biased rag of a "newspaper" eats it up. Patriots have been warned.
